

Prof Arif Siddiqui Young Investigator Award in Physiology

Purpose:

A certificate and a medal to recognize a junior South Asian Association of Physiologists (SAAP) member who has demonstrated outstanding achievements in the field of physiology at the institutional or national level.

Eligibility Criteria:

This award will be given to a junior member of SAAP who demonstrates outstanding achievements in physiology research, education or service.

For the purposes of this award:

- A SAAP Members who are less than 40 years of age.
- Self-nomination is accepted. However, at least one (1) letter of support from a senior SAAP member is required at the time of submission.
- Nominees should demonstrate a strong local and national reputation in physiology research, education or service.
- Nominee must include evidence of research, education or service

Examples include

- designing innovative curricula and educational materials
- innovative publications in physiology research or physiology education
- a significant role in mentoring physiology educators
- Nominations would be strengthened by inclusion of evidence of educational excellence in the form of learner evaluation

Examples of outstanding service related to physiology can include, but are not limited to:

- Service to SAAP in the form of committee contribution and leadership
 - Contributions and leadership at the institutional/national/international level
 - Service to the community via public education programs or campaigns, volunteerism, or non-profit organizations
 - Development of new or innovative programs at the institutional/national/international level
 - Commitment to mentorship
- ❖ Nominations from a diversity of background (including race, gender, ethnicity, nationality) are encouraged
- ❖ Candidates who have submitted unsuccessfully in the past may reapply.
- ❖ Members who have received this award within the previous 3 years are ineligible.
- ❖ Nominations shall be reviewed/evaluated by the SAAP Awards Committee appointed by the SAAP Executive Committee.

Deadline for submission of the nomination package is the 30th of September 2023

The soft copy of the nomination package should be submitted to Prof. Mangala Gunatilake, President of the South Asian Association of Physiologists (SAAP) at the email address - mangalagunatilake@hotmail.com